With Faculty Leader Professor David Eppel and Host Bob Behr

We are heading to London once again, with Professor David Eppel of the Theatre Department. By December, David will select six of the best dramatic productions, no musicals, and the day that we will attend them. Then you will make your own reservations by phoning the theatre and using your credit card or by booking online. This method gives you the freedom to choose seat location and price. Details will follow.

We will discuss each play at the hotel the morning after we attend the production. You are then free to enjoy London’s other cultural delights such as historical sites and museums. An additional matinee is also possible. Late March in London is usually fresh and green, with forsythia and magnolias blooming in the parks and squares.

Our Faculty Leader

Joining us as Faculty Leader is David Eppel, Professor of Theatre and Chair of the Department. He is a veteran of previous London Theatre Weeks with Williams alumni. He has a BA from the University of Cape Town and an MFA from Columbia University. Prior to his arrival in the USA he was a founding member of Jo’berg’s famed Market Theatre. David has been at Williams since 1986.
